DETAILED ACTION

Preliminary Remark

Claim 34 refers to claim 15 as a “method.” However, claim 15 is a product (i.e., a system).

Thus, for the purpose of the present restriction requirement, an assumption is made that claim 34 is drawn to a system, as inferred by its dependence on claim 15.

Election/Restrictions

Restriction to one of the following inventions is required under 35 U.S.C. 121:

- I. Claims 1-14, 22-25, 32, 33, and 35, drawn to a method of analyzing the efficiency of a polymerase chain reaction, involving the estimation of a slope of dependence of a logarithm of the signal on cycle number, classified in class 702, subclass 86.
- II. Claims 15-21 and 34, drawn to a system which performs an analysis of a polymerase chain reaction, classified in class 702, subclass 127.
- III. Claims 26-31, drawn to a method of calculating the initial load of a biological product, classified in class 435, subclass 91.2. If this Group is elected, further species election is required.

The inventions are distinct, each from the other because of the following reasons:

Inventions I and III are unrelated to each other. Inventions are unrelated if it can be shown that they are not disclosed as capable of use together and they have different designs, modes of operation, and effects (MPEP § 802.01 and § 806.06). In the instant case, the different inventions involve different steps to achieve a different outcome (e.g., determining how efficient the PCR is versus a method of determining the initial load of a gene or virus).

Invention II is related to Inventions I and III as product and process of use. The inventions can be shown to be distinct if either or both of the following can be shown: (1) the process for using the product as claimed can be practiced with another materially different product or (2) the product as claimed can be used in a materially different process of using that product. See MPEP § 806.05(h). In the instant case the system of Group II can be used in either of the methods of Groups I and III.

Because these inventions are independent or distinct for the reasons given above and have acquired a separate status in the art because of their recognized divergent subject matter, restriction for examination purposes as indicated is proper.

Further Species requirement for Group III

This application contains claims directed to the following patentably distinct species:

- a) determining the initial load of a virus or bacteria (claim 28); and
- b) determining the initial load of a gene (claims 29-31).

The species are independent or distinct because the methods are directed toward the determination of different analyte, wherein these methods would require searches, which are not coextensive in scope. .

Applicant is required under 35 U.S.C. 121 to elect a single disclosed species for prosecution on the merits to which the claims shall be restricted if no generic claim is finally held to be allowable. Currently, claims 26 and 27 are generic.

Applicant is advised that a reply to this requirement must include an identification of the species that is elected consonant with this requirement, and a listing of all claims readable thereon, including any claims subsequently added. An argument that a claim is allowable or that all claims are generic is considered nonresponsive unless accompanied by an election.

Upon the allowance of a generic claim, applicant will be entitled to consideration of claims to additional species which depend from or otherwise require all the limitations of an allowable generic claim as provided by 37 CFR 1.141. If claims are added after the election, applicant must indicate which are readable upon the elected species. MPEP § 809.02(a).

A telephone call was not made to request an oral election to the above restriction requirement due to the complex nature of the requirement (MPEP § 812.01).

Applicant is advised that the reply to this requirement to be complete must include (i) an election of a species or invention to be examined even though the requirement be traversed (37 CFR 1.143) and (ii) identification of the claims encompassing the elected invention.

The election of an invention or species may be made with or without traverse. To reserve a right to petition, the election must be made with traverse. If the reply does not distinctly and specifically point out supposed errors in the restriction requirement, the election shall be treated as an election without traverse.

Should applicant traverse on the ground that the inventions or species are not patentably distinct, applicant should submit evidence or identify such evidence now of record showing the inventions or species to be obvious variants or clearly admit on the record that this is the case. In either instance, if the examiner finds one of the inventions unpatentable over the prior art, the evidence or admission may be used in a rejection under 35 U.S.C.103(a) of the other invention.
